Dennis Yi Tenen
Columbia University

Experimental Criticism

An Inquiry Concerning the Creative Limits of Artificial Intelligence

Friday, January 5, 2018 at 13.30-15.00
Room 1586-114 (Kasernen)

Dennis Yi Tenen is an Assistant Professor in the Department of English and Comparative Literature, Columbia University. His teaching and research happen at the intersection of people, texts, and technologies. A former software engineer at Microsoft and currently faculty associate at the Center for Data, Media, and Society, he is the author of Plain Text: The Poetics of Computation (Stanford University Press, 2017) and co-founder of Columbia's Group for Experimental Methods in the Humanities. In this talk, he will present his forthcoming book. The event is organized by The Research Program in Literary Studies.