

China Studies, AU, host three public lectures in September by Prof. Ding Dou, School of International Studies, Peking University:

LECTURE 3

The Dragon- Elephant Conflict: Fluctuations in China-India Relations

China and India, as the world's two most populous countries and two major developing countries with global influence, have established diplomatic relations for over 70 years. The development of their relationship has been featured by conflict and cooperation, mainly subject to the three factors: border conflicts, geopolitical competition, and great power games. In recent years, Sino-Indian relations have almost reached a point of rupture, with India seeing China as the biggest security threat. India has also abandoned its long-standing diplomacy of non-alignment and got entangled in the US Indo-Pacific strategy. However, China remains India's largest trading partner, although India has long grumbled about its growing and remarkable trade deficit with China. In the long run, China and India are neither friend nor foe.

GUEST LECTURER

PROF. DING DOU

School of International Studies at Peking University, China

MORE INFO

USE THE QR CODE

Organizer: Global Studies

Contact: Dr. Zhang Chun

Email: ostzc@cas.au.dk - Phone: 3125 0656

Friday
September 27, 2024
14.15-16.00
Aarhus University, Nobel Park
Jens Chr. Skous Vej 4, Aarhus C
1483-220

Photo/Graphics: Eurasia Review

SCHOOL OF CULTURE AND SOCIETY
AARHUS UNIVERSITY